Federal Judge Deals Blow To Plan To Buy Gas Company's Property.

ACT IS PROHIBITED BY STATUTE

Renders Long Opinion, In Which He States That Corpo- ration Had No Power To Agree To Sell Under Its Charter.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—Municipalities have no power to take over the property of public service corporations, even when an option on such property is provided to the corporation's charter, according to a decision rendered by Judge Francis E. Baker of the United States Circuit Court.
The franchise granted the Consumers' Gas Trust Company, formed in 1887 to bring natural gas to this city for fuel purposes, contained a stipulation, which the company accepted, giving the city the right after ten years to take over the property at an appraised value. The Consumers' company has ceased to do business and the city gave notice that it would enforce its option. Suit was brought by a stockholder, alleging that the corporation exceeded its powers when it accepted the ordinance containing the provision regarding the option.
Question of Public Policy.
Judge Baker sustains this contention and renders a long opinion, in which he quotes liberally from United States decisions. The opinion is based on the ground that the Consumers' Gas Trust Company had no statutory authority to sell its plant or to contract to do so, and that it is against public policy to permit a public service corporation like a gas company to sell its franchise or plant and thereby disqualify itself from rendering such public service.
The city contended that the company, having entered into the contract, was estopped from disputing its power to do so, and that the sale to the city was not open to the objections of public policy when are involved in a sale from one company to another, but the court held differently, and not only permitted the company to plead on authority to enter into such a contract but decided that it could not do so.

The court says in part:
"If the gas company were required at the end of ten years, or at any time while it was engaged in serving the public, to surrender its property as an entirety to the city, it is obvious that the company would not be in a position to continue the service it had been rendering and for which it had been granted its charter by the state. The sale of its plant as a going concern would necessarily include the good will of the business.
"And although the city would not be required, in order to operate the plant, to take an assignment of the franchise of the gas company, yet in paying for the good will of the business the city would be paying for the extinguishment of the franchise. And at all events the city would be authorized to cancel the privilege which had been given the company instantly upon the company incapacitating itself and failing longer to discharge its obligations to the public.
"It may be said that if a contract is of such a nature that had the corporation at once proceeded to execute it its act would have been contrary to public policy, or expressly or impliedly prohibited by statute, or would in any degree disable the corporation from the performance of its statutory duties, the undertaking cannot be enforced by either party."

BRITISH FLEET OFF FOR BALTIC WATERS

England Wishes by Move to Counter- act Preponderance of German Influence.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, August 19.—The British channel fleet will sail for the Baltic sea tomorrow and will remain there through the month of September. As it has been years since a British fleet appeared in that sea the announcement is connected in the public mind with Emperor William's recent tour and the visit of a German squadron to Scandinavian waters. The cruise of the British fleet is regarded as designed to counteract the preponderance of German influence in Scandinavian politics. The Admiralty, however, discourages the idea of politics having any bearing on the cruise and says that the Baltic is an open sea and that the fleet is simply going there to execute maneuvers, ceremonious visits not being contemplated.
Germany Mad at Great Britain
Berlin, August 19.—The cruise of a British fleet in the Baltic has greatly irritated the anti-British section of the Germans, who are raising the claim that Germany has the right to exclude foreign warships from those waters. They claim that England has no possessions of any description in the Baltic which might involve the defense of her national interests. She bases her measures there solely on the idea of her general supremacy on the sea and of her monopoly-like sovereign position in all the waters of the world.

Coldness Toward Bride Previous to Wedding, Causes Many Social Leaders' Absence.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, Cal., August 19.—The wedding of Miss Leslie Green and Howard Huntington, son of the multi-millionaire railroad magnate, took place here today, from the home of the bride. Fashionables of this place and Oakley were rather disappointed in not having been invited among the 150 guests, mostly friends of the bride, owing to have been due to the coldness with which Miss Green was treated before her engagement. Miss Ruth Green, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and two of Mr. Huntington's sisters, Elizabeth and Marion, were bridesmaids, the other two being Miss Elizabeth Livermore and Miss Ruth Knowles. Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left for a six months' tour of Europe.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Worcester, Aug. 19.—Judge Easton today in the Taggart divorce trial dismissed Captain Taggart's charges implicating Lieut. Richter and Clinton Spencer, the latter a Chicago business man, on the motion of Mrs. Taggart's attorneys. He refused to dismiss the complaint against Col. Minor, Lieut. Fortescue, Capt. Bass and "Bully" Taggart. The deposition of Captain Bass was read today. "He had called at the Taggarts' house in Manila but four times during their stay there and there was no intimacy between him and Mrs. Taggart, and none would have been possible. The witness never saw Mrs. Taggart alone under any circumstances that would make any confidences possible. He denied ever having played poker for money with Mrs. Taggart or that she had visited him at his quarters. The night he quarreled with Taggart was when the latter had been drinking."

URGE FEDERAL AID TO MINERS

New Department Under National Control Is Being Eagerly Sought For Now.

SCIENCE TO REPLACE THE CHANCES

Speaker Before The Trans Mississippi Congress Declares That A Bureau Does Not Possess Prestige And Authority.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 19.—A government department of mines and mining would be more beneficial to the country at large than the department of agriculture, according to an address delivered before the trans-Mississippi commercial congress by J. H. Richards of Boise, Idaho, president of the American mining congress. A great opportunity to add to the country's welfare lies within the government's power by the creation of such a department, he declared.
"Should congress create a department of mines or mining co-ordinate with the department of agriculture all will agree that if such a department is necessary to enable our government to meet the full measure of its responsibility to the American people, then such a department should be created, otherwise not.
Duty to the People.
"In presenting my views on this important topic it is not a question with me as to what we owe to mining but rather what does our government owe to the American people, not merely in restraining them from injuring one another, but by adding them to help one another by a harmonious positive rather than a discordant negative course.
"There are at least four great departments in the industrial development of our country's resources—agriculture, mining, manufacturing and transportation—that should be united in purpose from a governmental standpoint. With these departments harmonized by wise direction, not by restraining evil tendencies merely, but also by encouraging good tendencies, there seems to be no limitation to America's capacity to achieve and her people to enjoy.
"I believe the great mining industry can be uplifted and the American people thereby blessed by a mining department on as great a scale as the agriculture department. Why have a department rather than a bureau? Because my conception of the purpose of our government is to lay an industrial foundation in this country broad enough to sustain the possible development of the combined material and intellectual possibilities of this most favored land. This cannot be done by the red tape of a bureau, but only by the grasp of America's greatest statesmen, who alone are worthy of standing at the head of as great an opportunity. This great responsibility should be presided over by one possessing original authority, power to originate through suggestion and execution.

"I believe as firmly as I believe in my country and its destiny that a department of mining would bring to the prospector, the forerunner of promise, and to the miner that scientific information concerning mineral formations, the character of various ores and their proper treatment to convert them into a condition of usefulness, that would return to the American people a far richer legacy than the department of agriculture is bringing and will bring. A new impetus and dignity would be given to mining through such a department, the wholesome effect of which would stimulate all industry.
"Therefore, in my mind, the creation of a federal department of mining by congress, resting on service to the American people by our government, that which will equip our government to wisely direct the industrial life of the American people in harmony with the fundamental political principles underlying our national existence, will of necessity energize our national vitality, encourage legitimate human endeavor, discourage our one great internal foe, dishonesty in high places, stimulate individual and cooperative industry, inspire us with a greater unity of purpose as a people, strengthen our grasp on that which is best and thereby wrest from our opportunities enduring results that are legitimately possible."
Manufacturing as Investment.
Colonel H. D. Loveland spoke on "Encouragement to Home Manufacturing."
"Manufacturing as an attractive investment for capital presupposes the existence of certain conditions," he said, "some of which are absolutely necessary, while all are desirable. Of paramount importance are the conditions of population, transportation, power, raw material and facilities for securing the necessary labor. In some of these the Pacific Coast is especially rich in opportunities; others the development of the past few years have tended greatly to improve and nowhere else, I believe, has the giant tread of the world's progress been listened to with keener appreciation and advantage than here on the Pacific Coast."
Mr. Loveland then enumerated the various Pacific coast products that are competing successfully with foreign products, concluding with the statement that while there were vast undeveloped possibilities for manufacturing on the Pacific coast it could be fairly said that its people were living up to its opportunities.

JAPANESE ENVOYS WANT TO MAKE SOME CONCESSION

Have Cabled Their Emperor For Permission To Do This At Meeting on Tuesday.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
Portsmouth, Aug. 19.—The Japanese envoys have recommended to their Emperor that the original peace demands be mediated. They have asked permission to offer concessions to the Russians when they meet again on Tuesday. This message was sent to Tokyo last night immediately after the return of Baron Komura and Minister Takahira from the conference of Friday afternoon. In that conference and through the long discussion of two Japanese articles which are under consideration they learned Russia's ultimatum. The Russian envoys have also communicated with the Emperor. The final determination of the question of peace or war now rests with the Emperor of Japan and the Emperor of Russia. The concessions which the Japanese envoys personally are willing to make and which they have recommended to their government are of such a character as will satisfy the Russians, while at the same time preserving the principles for which the Japanese have contended.

CANDIDATES FOR FOOTBALL TEAM

MANAGER DOWNER HAS LIST OF FORTY ELIGIBLE PLAYERS.

KING'S OLD MEN RETURNED

Several of Last Year's Foundation Stones and Some Very Attractive New Material.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., August 19.—Two weeks of busy correspondence and preparation remain for Graduate Manager George F. Downer before Coach Phil King and Assistant Coach Eddie Holt arrive to take charge of the preliminary football training which will be done at Maquette. Manager Downer, as the result of correspondence with the head coach, has made up a list of some 40 players, whom he hopes will report for the early work. The number includes all the players of last year who have signified their willingness and qualifications to play for positions on the Badger eleven this fall, and also a dozen or more attractive candidates who will either enter the game for the first time or return after absence since the last year that Phil King trained the squad at Madison.

Not Decided Manager Downer and Coach King will agree that no conjecture of the personnel of the Wisconsin team can be made until at least the preliminary training season is far advanced, until the candidates have reported and been tried out and the coaches have "got a line" on the material. The prospects now in sight indicate that the Badger team will be fast and fairly heavy. A new center, quarterback, fullback, right halfback and some line men must be developed, even should the old men available succeed in holding their places, which is not at all assured because of the change of coaches and the complete change of style of game that this will bring about. The best man at present available as the successor of "Dick" Remp at center appears to be John O'Brien, who played at tackle last year, although he desired to play center, but that place was filled by Remp. "Dick" has gone to California, confiding to his friends here that he intends to train for honors in the pugilistic world. He even went so far as to somewhat boastfully declare that his 208 pounds of arduousness were a match for James J. Jeffries. He was displeased when laughed at and said, "Wait and see."

New Players Donovan, the tall Irishman from Iowa, who played at guard last fall, will probably be able to hold his place at the right side of center, although he was not at all that could be desired for the position and it is said that several heavy men will appear to try for line positions.

T. H. Jones of Portage, a member of the 1902 Wisconsin team, the last Badger eleven coached by Phil King, will return and try for right tackle. He played end two years ago, but as he weighs 192 pounds the intention is to use him where weight is more in demand, particularly because Bush will be back for his fourth year at left end and Fidelity will round out his omphalos of football at the right extreme of the Badger line. Wilson Bertke, a flaxen-haired German player who has been at left tackle for two years and was practically unanimously chosen at that place on the all-western elevens last year, will be alone in his chase for the place this fall. Hunt, Bridgely and Perry are leading for left guard, in the mind of the critics, but new material is expected to show up strong in the competition for this important position.

Capt. Vanderboom

Captain E. J. Vanderboom will again play his usual position at left halfback and Fletcher, Wrabetz, Schneider and L. J. Liljequist will try for the other half. Liljequist played on King's last Wisconsin eleven, but with T. H. Jones, refrained from training for the last two years, on account of difficulties with the graduate coaches, it is said. Marsh, another 1902 player, will try for quarterback, which position will be contested for by Cummings, the crack baseball pitcher, and Melzner and Kuehnstedt, who alternated the place last year with George Jones, who will not return as a result of his refusal to pay his board at the training table. Roseth and Nordenholt are mentioned as the most promising candidates for fullback.

After having been used by the martyred President during the war days, it was also used for the conveyance of his remains from Washington to Springfield.

FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR LAKE OF GOLD

Two Brothers Spent Millions on Mining Property—Others Reap Rewards.

Out in Silverton, Colo., there is a story that once in a while there is a variant from the established order of things in the mining industry. For the most part, mining means risk. It means the investment of a considerable amount of good hard cash and the employment of much hard labor, endless thought and many anxious days. And the end, too often, is merely a hole in the ground, a mile or so of underground tunnel, and a choice collection of blasted hopes in memory of humanity's overpowering ambition to get rich quick.

The exception to this rule is usually one of absorbing interest, as witness the tale of the Ennis brothers, who sunk one million dollars in their search for a fabulous spirit mine and at the last, when their resources were gone and their workings abandoned, other men came along and reaped the reward of their efforts.

A Lake of Gold Away back in the early '70's a Gotham medium told Edward and John Ennis of New York that a great lake of gold existed in a certain point in the United States. It had been especially reserved for the Ennis brothers and they might secure it by merely following the medium's directions to the letter.

They did. Their directions landed them in San Juan county, Colorado, where, high up on King Solomon mountain, seven miles north of Silverton, they set their stakes and christened their prospective bonanza the Highland Mary. The Ennises had ample capital. They built a $10,000 residence before commencing their work. As their tunnel proceeded into the mountains toward the fabled golden lake, specific maps and diagrams of its course were from time to time sent to the New York medium, who as regularly sent back instructions how to proceed with the big bore. Her changes of directions were erratic and frequent and today the main tunnel of the Highland Mary mine, which is about a mile in length, would put to shame a tunnel through the Roman catacombs.

Never Found

The Ennis brothers followed instructions to the letter, but the lake of gold, always "just a little way ahead," persistently failed to materialize. At last, after the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 and driving into the mountain 4,100 feet, bankruptcy overtook the operators and the property was sold. The only person known to have materially profited by the venture was the New York medium, who is said to have received something like $50,000 for advice and sympathy. During the operation of the property, no secret was made of the "system" under which the development work was done, and the result was that the miners finally became so imbued with the spirit idea that none of them would work in the tunnel alone, and there were frequent tales of strange noises and shadowy forms in various parts of the property. Toward the end of the Ennis brothers' career it became difficult to obtain miners to work in the property at all.

Is Now Working

For years the mine laid idle. Two years ago, however, it passed into the hands of practical mining men who, under a system other than "spiritualism," have opened up several good veins of lead, silver and copper. And before the close of the present season, they bid fair to place the old mine in the front rank of the country's producers. It is now one of the most promising in the whole district.

Save $100 on a Piano

The $100 that it ordinarily takes to sell a piano by means of local canvassers can be saved by getting your piano direct from the world's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, Chicago. Lyon & Healy often sell from 20 to 30 pianos direct in a single day. And the cost of handling this immense business is very little greater than that of a smaller concern selling only a few pianos a month, hence the great advantage of dealing with them.

The freight on a piano from Chicago to this city is only a few dollars, and you run absolutely no risk in ordering from Lyon & Healy, for if the piano they send you is not satisfactory, they agree to pay freight both ways.

Write today for a copy of "A Piano Book," which is the most beautiful piano catalogue ever printed. It offers a choice of four different plans under which you may secure an instrument. A copy will be sent free by Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago.

GENERAL GOSSIP ON CONGRESSMEN

MILWAUKEE SENTINEL TALKS OF M. G. JEFFRIS' CHANCES.

AN ANTI-COOPER SENTIMENT

Milwaukee Men Also Have a Fight on Their Hands To Defeat Cochems.

Ancient to politics the Milwaukee Sentinel has the following story on congressional possibilities:

"There is a move among administration republicans out in Waukesha to shelve Congressman Stafford, and the man selected at this time as the possible candidate to succeed him is Henry C. Cochems of Milwaukee," declared John Ross of Waukesha.

"Among the administration men there has been more or less talk of electing a successor to Congressman Stafford and as near as I can learn, especial efforts will be made to control the nomination in the interest of Cochems."

"Reports are in circulation in part of the district which constantly couple the name of Milwaukee's assistant district attorney with the nomination for congress and the belief is expressed that an organized effort will be made in his behalf. Upon this talk can be based, in my opinion, a red hot preliminary contest in the primaries next year. There is no uncertainty about the fact that Stafford's scalp is desired and the administration forces are lining up to win out."

Milwaukee Men Know of Candidacy

The probable candidacy of Assistant District Attorney Cochems has been a matter of political comment in Milwaukee for some time. It has developed, according to reports, that Congressman Stafford is not extreme enough in his administrative views to suit the Milwaukee leaders. Among the friends of Attorney Cochems, denial is made that there is any organized effort to send him to Washington or that any possible candidates, it is, however, stated that Cochems would not be adverse to a seat in congress and has for some years been having his climate plans with this view.

John Ross, who is one of the well informed Waukesha men, and considered to be in touch with matters pertaining to the politics of that end of the district, is positive in the belief that a move in favor of Cochems has already been started and that this will be followed by an organized effort in the Milwaukee end of the district.

In First District The papers in the First congressional district as well as the politicians, have commenced to discuss the probable results of what is believed to be the opposition to Congressman Cooper's re-nomination. First district politicians, who have been in the city during the last few days, assert that the anti-Cooper sentiment is growing stronger and that present indications are that M. G. Jeffris of Janesville will enter the field against him. The First district papers have taken up the controversy and considerable feeling is being stirred up.

Fight Between Factions Begins

The anti-Cooper men assert that he has served the district long enough and should make room for a new man. The Cooper men are attacking Jeffris on factional grounds, claiming that his opposition to La Follette in the campaign last year will lose him the support of a strong element of the party. In the meantime, sentiment is growing which politicians claim will produce one of the old-time contests in the First district.

Jenkins' District

Reports from Congressman Jenkins' district are to the effect that he will be a candidate for re-nomination and while at his home at Chippewa Falls he is carefully looking over his district with a view of smoothing down any possible opposition.

Milwaukee's visitors from Senator

McGillivray's territory assert that there is a move on foot, seeking to nominate McGillivray for governor and that an effective canvass of home territory has already been made to define the possibilities of the situation. It has long been understood in political circles that Senator McGillivray desired promotion and during the last session of the legislature his many moves were interpreted to mean that the coming campaign presented his chance. While McGillivray has not always been in the best of fellowship with the Exch men of the district and at times has been under suspicion of the ultra administration men, there is nothing in his record that would prevent him from coming in with the strong support of the Eighth congressional district.

Believe McGillivray Might Succeed

McGillivray, among politicians, is credited with the surprising faculty of succeeding where ordinary politicians would fail. His success is ascribed to the fact that he never wastes a minute, but makes his campaign among the people, and once started, never ceases his efforts. "This sort of work has won his district against adverse conditions several times, and it is believed that he at least will succeed in the primaries of his own congressional district, unless Houser and his friends block the way under the belief that McGillivray's candidacy will interfere with their plans. One thing is certain from the reports Black River Falls way, and that is that Senator McGillivray believes he has a chance with the people for the nomination for governor, and if this is so, he is credited with sufficient stubbornness to make trouble for the administration leaders who may want him out of the field."

Not Made Public

Madison men report that the plans of Gov. La Follette are as far from being made public today as they were when he sent the edict to the legislature covering his acceptance of the governorship. According to one report, Lieut. Gov. Davidson has rented his Madison residence and this was taken to mean that preparations were being made to move into the executive mansion. This report is denied by friends of Davidson, who assert that the next state officer in the list of succession knows nothing of Gov. La Follette's intentions and that he has not been advised as to whether La Follette will remain in Madison or go to Washington.

HARVESTING OF NEW TOBACCO IS BEGUN

Work Will Be Under Way in Earnest By End of Next Week—Not General as Yet.

Wisconsin tobacco producers have commenced the harvest of their 1905 leaf in some sections. The work is not general as yet, and will not be under way in all parts of the leaf raising districts until the end of next week. Heavy damage from hail, all wrought in the short space of eight days in the early part of the month, is reported from various localities, but there is a promise of a generally fair crop. In Rock county the loss will not be as great as in many sections and the scarcity, that will doubtless exist upon the market of the world in the quality and nature of the leaf grown here, is almost certain to obtain for the growers a good price, though buyers will be on their guard against half-injured crops and inspect all very closely. There is little probability of any amount to speak of being left over next summer in the growers' hands, the buying of standing crops being general in the sections to the north. To show the lack of available Wisconsin stock in New York the following from the United States Tobacco Journal is of interest:

"Buying of the growing crop of the 1905 leaf still standing in the fields, is reported from Wisconsin. This is more of a gamble, and of the most reprehensible kind, than speculating in 'futures.' To gamble on the outcome of a tobacco crop a year in advance is probably the boldest risk any adventurous spirit can take. For it is absolutely impossible to foresee or predict and guarantee the safety of the curing in the sheds, and sweat in the boxes, no matter how promising and allowing a tobacco crop may appear in the field. Neither experience nor science can vouchsafe its proper outcome in a sound and perfect condition a year in advance. The result depends on so many vicissitudes mostly of incalculable atmospheric conditions during the nearly a year's period of maturing that is more than a gambler's recklessness to wager on it. And as often as it has been done, in nine cases out of ten it has proven disastrous. But that people should nevertheless incur such a tremendous risk would go to prove on the other hand in what desperate straits they must find themselves. They must be convinced of an absolute shortage of it if they stake their chances of getting even a spoiled and defective supply a year hence. But such gambling risks in a raw material must raise the cupidity of the farmer as well as the price of the stock on hand."

General Railway Notes.

The Supreme Court of Tennessee, in a case involving the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company (38 Southwestern Rep. 326), holds a carrier liable for injuries inflicted on a passenger by other intoxicated passengers, that were allowed to carouse through the train with the knowledge of the employees of the railroad company who took no steps to protect unoffending passengers.

In compliance with a new anti-cigarette law in Indiana, railroad companies operating in the state have ceased to sell cigarettes on trains passing through its borders. There is now in prospect a contest to determine whether the companies may sell intoxicants on dining and buffet cars, without having a license for every county in the state through which they pass.

The Southern Pacific Company announces that annual passes will be issued to train dispatchers, station agents, conductors and engineers who have been in service ten years or more, on the following basis: For service of over ten and less than fifteen years, an annual pass good over the division on which the employee is located; for service over fifteen years and less than twenty years, an annual pass for self and wife over the division; for more than twenty years' service, an annual pass over the entire system for the employee and dependent members of the family.

Rate War Ended.

Chicago, August 19.—Because of the settlement of the eastbound war on passenger differential rates from Chicago to Eastern points, normal rates are to be restored tomorrow the earliest possible date for restoration of rates under the Interstate Commerce Act, made in New York city. The Michigan Central railroad agrees by this arrangement to forego its right to any differential to Buffalo. It also agrees not to apply any differential rate out of Chicago on through tickets to New York over New York Central lines east of Buffalo. It retains the right, however, of selling tickets at differential rates out of Chicago over lines other than those of the New York Central, east of Buffalo, and also of using differential rates as basing rates by New York Central and other routes east of Buffalo on all tickets sold from points west of Chicago.

Dandruff is Caused by a Germ That Saps the Hair's Vitality. It is now a settled fact that dandruff is caused by a germ. Falling hair and baldness are the result of dandruff. Dr. E. J. Beardsley, of Champaign, Ill., got hold of the new hair preparation, Nowbro's Herpicide, the only one that kills the dandruff germ. He says: "I used Herpicide for my dandruff and falling hair, and I am well satisfied with the result." Dr. J. F. Fugate, of Urbana, Ill., says: "I have used Herpicide for dandruff with excellent results. I shall prescribe it in my practice." Herpicide kills the dandruff germ. "Those who believe a thing make others believe most." If you don't believe in your store your advertising will reveal the fact—in its volume as well as in its tone.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"The pulse of the nation throbs with the stilted fever of the competitive life. It is the national life, the American spirit, to 'outride' or 'undo' each other. In industrialism, in business, in society the rule of gold has supplanted the Golden Rule. In this great country of ours the policy is to 'get rich quick' or 'go broke quick.' It is ever the duel of the dollars, the career of chance, the great struggle for success—the survival. Competition is the life of trade, but the death of altruism."

This sentiment was expressed in the opening paragraph of an address delivered before the annual convention of the International Association of Factory Inspectors, recently held in Detroit.

The speaker was W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education department of the Chicago Board of Education, whose topic was "The Competitive Life."

He bemoaned the fact that child labor and feminine labor are crowding out men in various departments of toll, and claimed that statistics prove that in 1861 cities of the United States, which are largely manufacturing centers, the excess of female population is over 200,000, while ten years ago these same cities reported 7,000 more men than women.

He says that "the competitive life has produced the new woman but not the new man. The American woman within the last decade has become more independent, more aggressive, more masculine in her pursuit of employment, and less dependent on the love and the whims of man. The woman of today marries less and works more. She would be rather ambitious darling than a husband's slave. Many women continue as wage earners even after marriage. In America, woman competes with man not only in the factory but in the store, the office, the classroom, in jurisprudence, in medicine, in positions of public trust. Woman is fast becoming the ruling sex. Whether that ever will extend to political power only time can tell."

Youth Crowding Out Age. "The competitive life tinkles in the ears of old age like the bell of death. It calls for the employment of youth—for the flower of life—for rosy cheeked femininity and dimpled faced childhood—for young men—youth, ever youth. 'No men over 40 need apply' is the stern decree of employers in this day and generation. Some draw the line at 35. Year after year the preference for employment creeps closer to childhood. The trend is toward the teens. It is the open door for the young and the closed doors for the old. In a few years sociologists will be confronted not only with home finding for the aged and for the idle men of middle age who employers think have reached their industrial uselessness in life at 40.

"We will not only have to save our children, but we will also have to save those lives that have grown gray, men and women who have been barred at the dead line of employment, and who must spend the evening of life either in the poorhouse or be dependent upon relatives in whose hearts still lives the sacred law of 'Honor thy father and thy mother.'"

"The competitive life has produced the worst form of 'tainted money'—the money that is tainted with the lifeblood of an overworked child. It enriches for the present, but bankrupts for the future."

Mr. Bodine is evidently a pessimist of pronounced type. While it is true that the industrial world is passing through a period of evolution, which in some instances amounts to revolution in methods, it is also true that at no time in history has labor found more ready employment than today. The world has discovered in the progress of rapidly changed conditions, that there is a place for woman in the ranks of industry, and this discovery has brought to women a life of independence and a spirit of self respect which she enjoys today as never before.

It is a popular theory that the highest ideal of womanhood is the homemaker and home-keeper, and it is doubtless true that, with rare exception, the average American girl aspires to a destiny where she shall reign supreme.

But the average girl is not a doll and there comes a day, before she has gained her majority, where ambition prompts to independence and she longs to contribute something to the support of the home by becoming self-supporting.

Some time between the age of 15 and 30 she may hope to marry, but employment while she waits and the education which comes with it, is a blessing and not a curse.

With the development of industries and the opening up of new channels where women find employment, has come the larger field for men, for the heavy work of life, as well as its heavy responsibilities belongs to them and always will.

The man who is weak enough today to envy a woman, her work and wages, is too weak to represent the sex. Let him get out and hustle and he will soon discover an open door of opportunity.

There is no occasion for conflict in the ranks of workers. There is room for all, with a long waiting list up near the top. The great transportation companies, and the heavy manufacturers employ men almost exclusively and always will.

What Mr. Bodine has to say of society and of the pulpit is true and worth reproducing. He says:

Society Maze of Glass Houses.

"There is a competitive life in society, as in industry. The competitive life of industry is to make money. The competitive life of society is to spend it, in the mad rivalry for leadership. We are forever endeavoring to reform society at the bottom and not at the top. We have recited for the poor, but we forget the rich society is but a crystal maze of glass houses where no inhabitant dare cast the first stone. There many a woman revels in the gilded life and many a 'gentleman of quality' does his drinking in private and his reeling in public."

"Many a member of the 'smart set' has two sets of manners—one for week days and the other, by way of contribution, for Sunday. Society is dying at the top. It is an organized hypocrisy, the breeder of race suicide, the dangerous example, the academy of divorce. It has mothers who look more into their mirrors than in the faces of their children—mothers who are fair and fretful slaves to the siren calls of fashion and frivolity, who seem to be drifting more and more away from home and health, who are raising children in hotels and the congested life of apartment houses."

"With the fashionable mother gadding about at social functions and the fashionable father sitting at his club amid a shower of champagne corks, the children are left to the care of the nurse, are seldom punished, and always hungry for parental affection and attention. As a result, sooner or later, with the trend of the society woman toward shifting the duty of motherhood, the neglected children of the rich will become as great a sociological problem as the neglected children of the poor. A boy is a boy whether he is a Faubus or an orphan of the street."

Preachers of Living Present Needed.

"This country needs more preachers who will have the courage to attempt the reformation of society, who will preach more of the living present and less of the past dead centuries; more of today and less ancient history, who will discuss live topics of this generation and break away from the dogmatic and theological sermons that cause so many men to pass by the church doors."

"By co-operation between the church and the state those evils that wreck the home and fill our prisons, our graves, and our juvenile corrective institutions can be lessened and the basic cause of juvenile delinquency and child labor reduced to the minimum."

PRESS COMMENT.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Has anyone heard of anybody being arrested yet for smoking cigarettes?

Madison Democrat: The loser pays. This is an axiom that even the bluffing Russians must recognize whether they will or no.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The varsity football players had better practice up before coming here to run up against the old Co. 1 team.

Stoughton Courier: It is reported that one drink of Evansville whiskey "would make a cotton ball bunny stand up and spit in a bulldog's face."

Sheboygan Journal: The fish trust is being sued in Ohio. A large number of Sheboygan people who failed to get any bites lately at the end of the government pier are willing to testify against it.

Rockford Register-Gazette: Major Taggart's case was very materially weakened when he was forced to confess from the witness stand that he mixed the first cocktail his wife ever drank.

Chicago Record-Herald: An Iowa preacher claims that he can play golf without using profane language. There are others who can do that, but the important thing is to be able to play the game without thinking profane thoughts.

El Paso Herald: "The smell of musk will drive mosquitoes away," says an eminent medical authority counseling New Orleans; which shows that they have some good sense even if they do bite yellow fever victims.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The Milwaukee newspapers are engaged in another ponderous discussion of the tariff problem and each succeeds in convincing itself more strongly than ever that it was always right.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Somehow no one ever stops to speculate of what may happen when Mr. Rockefeller dies. There is something about the personality of the Standard Oil magnate that gives one the impression that he is liable to live forever.

Edgerton Eagle: Special police are among the needs of Milton Junction, according to the Telephone. Ahem! And its only six weeks too since our little sister began putting on metropolitan airs by granting saloon licenses.

Chicago Tribune: If the negotiations finally narrow down to the consideration of Sakhalin and the indemnity, the world will feel like whispering a friendly suggestion into the Japanese ear to the effect that this is the time to be magnanimous.

Marion Advertiser: The main fault of reformers is that their work is spasmodic. They kick the rascals out, then take charge of things, quit reforming and begin scalping themselves. So it is that a system of graft will keep going round like a wagon wheel until they have stolen one another blind.

Evansville Review: The carnival show at Sloughton was not as much of a success, from a financial point of view as expected. The band boys who had the responsibility of the affair, put up $200 to advertise the scheme and were to receive ten percent of the gross receipts. The receipts approximated $2,000. Nothing made.

Exchange: The announcement that the Standard Oil company has been able to declare a dividend of $20 a share to date, as against $9 for the corresponding period of last year, goes to show what a blighting influence the writings of Miss Ida Tarbell and Thomas W. Lawson have had on the business.

Racine Journal: What an awful scare was that given the aristocratic diners in a hotel dining room at Saratoga, N. Y., by the appearance of Booker T. Washington in company of John W. Wainwright. Furthermore he walked to the table escorting Mr. Wainwright's daughter. This fact will undoubtedly be made the subject of many fervid editorials in southern newspapers.

Madison Journal: M. G. Jeffris, the able Janesville attorney, is being groomed by his friends for congress to succeed H. A. Cooper of the first district and the point is made that with both men so well known and the operation of the primary election law there will be little room for manipulation and the people can make a pretty straight choice.

Columbus Dispatch: The Louisville Courier-Journal thinks there are enough ships carrying the colors of the United States. Kansas and Nebraska and other prairie newspapers have long opposed increasing the navy. Boston opposes a day on coal and wheat, while North Dakota wants oranges admitted free. It is remarkable how unanimous we can all be in foregoing something the need of which does not loom immediately before us.

Boston Herald: A hundred women thronged the space inside the rail at the West Side police court in New York in a single day this week, seeking warrants to arrest husbands who had deserted or refused to support them. Probation Officer Canfield of the court, in commenting on the vexed problem of the desertion of wives, says that in these cases all nationalities and all occupations figure, but adds that there is one occupation never yet on his list. No musician has ever been haled before his court. Does this imply that there is more harmony in a musician's home, or that he is wise content to play second fiddle all his life?

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: That Philadelphia man who took a state's prison sentence for eighteen months, rather than spend $1,000 in defending himself may have been something of a disappointment to his attorney, but he showed pretty good business judgment after all. Had he put up a defense the lawyer would have secured the money and the chances are that the prisoner would have gone up for even a longer term. As it is he saves $830 as well as a good lot of time. It seems strange, however, that a man who deals with courts and lawyers on a cold blooded basis such as this, would be running around the country forging $12 checks.

California Horseman: Water your horses five or six times a day. They cannot get too much. You will notice a difference very quickly in the general condition of the horse as he gets used to pure water. The water should be pure. Many farmers think the water is all right so long as the horse will drink it. That is indeed a great mistake. Pure water is as essential to horses as it is to man. Impure water will impair the health of your horses enough to make them easy subjects of disease. It is enough to say that improper feeding and watering will doubtless account for over one-half of the digestive disorders met with in the horse.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Modification of our Chinese policy and of the administration of it promises to be the burning question of discussion at the transmississippi congress, the four days' session of which opened at Portland, Ore., last Wednesday. Opinion among the delegates on the subject seems thus far to be divided. Those standing for fair treatment of China being evidently the ones who have informed themselves as to the present difficulty involving the boycott, the others such delegates as have been on the subject of specific current issues and of the recent state generalities and gallery clapping about Chinese cheap labor. Portmately President Wilson is with those who understand what they are talking about—that is, the real issue involved in the boycott, and his manly stand for proper and civilized treatment of our entry ports of the privileged classes of Chinese and for such treaty concessions as can be made consistently with our general policy of protecting American white labor against demoralizing competition.

tion should be reflected in the policy and recommendations of the congress.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: Bishop Potter, the distinguished prelate who obtained considerable notoriety by giving his indorsement to a subway saloon, has made a new bid for publicity by advocating a twenty-minute sermon and quoting biblical authority for his recommendation. The bishop is of the opinion that long sermons are apt to drive addressees to sleep and should be avoided. His position on this subject could doubtless be easily established as sound by evidence gathered most any day. The reform he proposes is apparently a needed one. The minister, however, will usually be compelled to put in more work on twenty or thirty minute sermons than would be necessary on a ramble that lasts an hour, and this fact may delay the arrival of that happy day when the short sermon becomes the rule instead of the exception.

Church Federation. Milwaukee Journal: On the fifteenth of November a conference will be held in New York that is full of significance regardless of what its result may be. Its object is to bring about a federation of the Protestant forces of America. There will be representatives from at least twenty-four religious denominations, having a membership of 18,000,000. Many of the most prominent Protestant leaders will be in attendance. Among the questions to be discussed are those of religious education, evangelization, the social order, missions, the national life and Christian progress. The conference may not result in a formal federation. There may be no organization established, but it will have a powerful influence, however, upon the Protestant churches in America. There will be a closer fellowship among this great body of Christian workers. The work of the various denominations will be done more efficiently and the life of the nation will be better. The movement for church federation should receive cordial support from every denomination; from every man and woman who wants to see our common life better, clearer and more wholesome.

Dodge the Dodgers.

R. D. Adams in Chicago Tribune: Dodgers are used but little in Jacksonville. Now and then a little merchant who has just launched out here with more new ideas and schemes in the advertising line than he has common sense tries the dodger, which is printed in all colors and contains what the author believes to be a number of bright remarks coined for bargain day. But it does not work. The merchant who adopts this method in Jacksonville soon relinquishes his claim to it and goes to the newspaper with his ad. An indication of the comparative cost for $75. I knew nothing of the value of this class of goods, but an honest journeyman further did and a lunch and a dollar gave me his opinion, and in December through a want ad. I sold it for $100 to a woman in St. Paul. Once a man tried to sell me a lot. Looking up the records, I found that the lot belonged to a prominent lawyer who had forgotten that he owned it. He found by his books that he had taken it some years before at a value of $400 and offered it to me for $800. I took it at once and sold it for $2,000. These are but a few of the bargains I have found in the small ads, but they are among the most profitable. I have made enough now and confine my work to real estate. I have gone beyond the small deals, but if ever I desire to make another start I know just where to dig.

Giving Bonuses.

Fond du Lac Reporter: Fond du Lac is under consideration by a Milwaukee company which is looking for a site for an automobile factory. One of the gentlemen interested has already visited the city and looked over the buildings of the Wisconsin Envelope company. No definite proposition has been made to the advancement association, so far as The Reporter is able to learn, but the gentleman who came here is said to have expressed himself as favorably impressed with Fond du Lac and its advantages as a site for his industry. New enterprises are always welcome in Fond du Lac provided they are substantial and will help to build up the city. When it has been announced just what, if anything, the automobile company desires from Fond du Lac the people will be better able to judge than they are at present; as to whether or not the enterprise is one that should be encouraged to come here.

AMATEUR DETECTIVE STIRS UP BEDFORD CASE

Swears Out Warrants for Three Men. Charging That They Murdered Miss Sarah C. Schafer.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 10.—Robert Owens, an amateur detective, filed affidavits before Justice McLaughlin of Oelitz charging Simpson B. Lowe, Frank Evans and Elmer Browning, all of Bedford, with the murder of Sarah C. Schafer, the Latin teacher of Bedford high school who was mysteriously killed on the night of Jan. 21, 1904. The action was taken without the knowledge or consent of Prosecutor Fred M. Fletcher, so the latter declares, and he says that he will refuse to sanction the service of warrants on the men named in the affidavits. He declares the affidavits are the result of the investigation of Owens, who is not thought here to be of strong mentality, and he says no attention will be paid them. Both Evans and Browning have been arrested before for complicity in the murder, both were discharged after a preliminary examination. The name of Simpson B. Lowe has never before been attached to the case in a legal form, but he recently filed a suit for libel, asking $10,000 from Col. Varis of this city.

Printer's Error.

"T. P." has collected some amusing instances of printers' errors, contributed by well-known authors. An English woman novelist, he says, tells of the mistake of a printer who made one of her characters say that "she stuffed papa into the grate, and soon there was a merry blaze." What she wrote was "paper."—Harper's Weekly.

Beautiful Poems With Long Hair.

The following remarks on Tennyson were recently handed in on an examination paper by a schoolboy in an English literary class: "Lord Alfred Tennyson was a celebrated poet, and he wrote a lot of beautiful poems with long hair. His greatest poem is called 'The Idle King.' He was made a lord, but he was a good man and wrote many oads."—Harper's Weekly.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE AT THE MYERS THEATRE

Excellent Attraction Delighted a Fair Sized Audience Last Evening.

The Schmidt and William vaudeville show last night at the Myers Grand was attended fairly well and the entire bill was very good. The bill opened with Jos. H. Lee, Irish comedy and wooden shoe dancing. He was greeted with general applause. Next was Geo. Constantine in illustrated songs, "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" and "When the Harvest Moon Was Shining on the River" pleased the audience very much. Then came Claude Austin in his comedy juggling act, featuring the oil can, kept the house in an uproar continually. While Bert Carpenter, the silly boy, did his share of singing and talking so to work the audience to the highest pitch when Joe Pa Vallum in refined singing and dancing, did excellent, receiving two encores. His back dancing was marvelous and was appreciated by all, and Geo. W. Carson, the funny Dutch comedian, surely pleased all with his story of Zena, his girl—"Zena was her front name." The microphone had some excellent pictures such as "Buster Brown," "Persimmon," "Wanted—A Wife," and closing pictures with the great train robbery, the effects of all pictures being worked back of the screen, which made the pictures very realistic. They were bright, clear and sharp and received hearty applause. The last but not least was the great Ver Valen, America's greatest ventriloquist. He was a bit from beginning to end with his mechanical figures, making them walk and talk at will. This act alone is worth double the price of admission and should be seen by everyone in town. Mr. Ver Valen, besides his wonderful act of ventriloquism, entertained with some of his wonderful imitations, such as taking a powder and drawing soda water, a barnyard in the morning and throwing his voice to a very far distance continually, coming closer when wanted and going to distance again, and many other features that pleased the audience last night. The Schmidt and William company will show this afternoon and evening, when they close and reappear here once every month, playing two or three nights. Both Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Williams are with the show and they save no expense so as to make the evening very entertaining and pleasing to all patrons.

PASTORS WHO LIKE WORK.

Building Fences, Cleaning Streets and Carrying Mail at Winsted.

The Rev. Newell M. Calhoun, pastor of the Second Congregational church at Winsted, Conn., and member of the Yale corporation, is building a rustic stone wall in front of Pine Bank, his summer residence on the shores of Highland lake, says a Winsted special to the New York World. His artistic work with the trowel is attracting many contractors.

The Rev. George Remington, a Baptist clergyman, formerly of Colbrook, is employed by the town raking stones on the highways. The Rev. P. S. Francis of New Hartford, a Methodist clergyman nearly seventy years old, is telling seven days a week. He carries the mail six days in the week between Collinsville and Torrington and preaches on the seventh.

Sleeve Buns For Girl Swimmers.

One mystery that has been baffling spectators at Bailey's beach in Newport has rested in the fact that many girls who profess they are unable to swim manage to glide through the water in a manner that suggests proficiency in the naturalist art, says the New York Press. Apparently they carried no life preservers to keep them from sinking. Now the secret has been revealed. It appears that the surprising skill of the girls is due to a contrivance they carry up their sleeves. The sleeves, which are decidedly puffy, are fitted up with rubber bags, which are blown up before the garment is donned. Thus the wearers are enabled to strike out in supreme confidence that they will not drag them down to their locker.

Teapots of Glass.

Glass teapots are coming into favor, says the Detroit News-Tribune. They are made of strong, tempered glass, and are delicately trimmed with bits of silver. Inside the teapot a hollow ball of silver rolls about and, by prompt absorption of the heat of the boiling water, prevents the glass from cracking. The charm of the crystal teapot lies not wholly in its beauty, for there is the additional advantage that the teakettle can see just what quantity she has on hand.

Dresser of Flowers.

Floridressers for flowers is the latest device in the horticultural realm. Just prior to an exhibition of flowers the artist, or professor, takes in hand such specimens as chrysanthemums, with filament petals, and trims them, cutting them to equal lengths and combing them. He also knows how to comb buds to open, smoothing out the petals and making them resemble flowers that are full blown.

Mark Twain and the Dry Dock.

Harper's Weekly of a recent issue contains a column of entertaining "personals"—lively anecdotes and observations on persons and events in the public eye. In one paragraph is quoted a new witicism of Mark Twain's. Mr. Clemens is quoted as defining a dry dock as "a thirsty physician."

ENGINE BURIED IN BEER TUNNEL

CRASH AT THE CROAK BREWERY
THIS MORNING.

JUST BEFORE DAY BROKE

Foreman A. R. Hahn Was First to Discover Catastrophe When He Opened the Door at 4:30.

Beneath the present site of the Croak Brewing Co.'s plant and for some distance to the west and south artisans many years ago, chiseled into the solid rock, on a level below the basement floor, to construct three roomy tunnels to be used for storing and cooling the brewing product. When, in later years, modern refrigerating methods were adopted the tunnels were closed and abandoned. But they were not filled up. One of them runs beneath the basement floor of the brew house, which is the central section of the building, and out under the C. & N. W. railroad tracks nearby. In this brew-house, supported by masonry built up from the basement floor, there has been a large boiler used in the brewing process; an old engine, employed principally in grading and elevator work; and an air pump. The modern engine which furnishes most of the power and is in operation all the time is located in the north wing of the building. All the foregoing is recounted in order that one may more readily understand what happened sometime between the hours of twelve last night and four this morning.

Looked Into an Abyss
When Foreman A. R. Hahn opened the brew-house door at half-past four o'clock this morning, he was to gaze into a black pit, where the engine had been. Down below the level of the cellar floor, amid a mass of crumpled masonry just a few inches of the metal surface of a single wheel was visible. The big boiler alongside of which the engine had stood, was tilted and seemed to be suspended in mid-air, most of the brick underpinning and a large section of the rear wall having been torn down with the machinery. On a small platform of timber located in one corner, now become an inclined shelf, the air-pump leaned perilously, straining at the pipes which still kept it moored above the wreckage. Foreman Hahn rubbed his eyes and when he was sure that he saw aright, moved very cautiously. The whole building might be about to drop through to China for aught he knew. After a time, however, he grew more confident that nothing more was to befall and communicated with Frank Croak by telephone.

Jar of Thunder Did It?
From present evidence it appears that the cave-in has been impending for some time. The stone above the tunnel had doubtless noted away and the aged brick foundations were none too secure. The jar of the thunder during the early-morning storm or possibly a passing train upset the balance and the crash followed. Singularly enough, no one in the neighborhood seems to have heard it. If they did it was mistaken for a peat of thunder. No one was in the building at the time. The engine, being an old one, will probably be allowed to rest peacefully in the grave it has found for itself. The boiler will be removed to another part of the brewery. "We will be handicapped somewhat for a day or two," said Frank Croak this morning, "principally on account of the boiler which was used last on Thursday. The damage will not be large. It might be a wise thing for the railroad company to investigate that section of this tunnel which runs under their tracks."

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Wisely Withdrew Fine: Having been permitted to obtain a very clear view of the probable consequences of their action the union authorities of the state have very wisely withdrawn the fine imposed on musicians of this city who played with the Imperial band at the Modern Woodmen picnic in Beloit on June 30. The disciplinary measure was undertaken to punish the local men for marching in a procession in which a non-union band took part.

A Strange School: F. B. Wilcox, who resides in the town of Harmony, has just graduated from one of the most novel schools now in existence—a school to teach the art of auctioneering. Mr. Wilcox says the course is four weeks in length and that the selling of everything from a toy whistle to a sixteen story building is explained for the pupils. In Mr. Wilcox's class were forty students from fourteen different states.

To Meet Crescents Again: Next Wednesday the Janesville Eagles baseball nine will again cross bats with the Milton Junction Crescents. The game will take place at Crescent park, between the villages of Milton and Milton Junction.

W. C. T. U. Meeting: At the home of Mrs. McFarland on Terrace street, Wednesday, the W. C. T. U. held a meeting and passed resolutions of sympathy for their bereaved member, Mrs. Grove. Mrs. Brandt was elected as delegate to the convention in place of Mrs. Miller who is unable to go. Mrs. N. E. Hild and Mrs. Miller gave readings. Mrs. Daisy Athon recited a poem, and Mrs. Poorman rendered a solo. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Miller.

Horseshoers' Picnic: At Moles Grove, the grounds on which the Chautauqui was held, the Horseshoers are today enjoying their annual picnic. Delegations from Edgerton and Beloit are present.

PYTHIANS PLAY AT CLINTON TUESDAY

Final Baseball Game in Series of Three Will Determine Relative Worth of the Teams.

On Tuesday next the Janesville K. of P. baseball team will journey to Clinton where the final game in the series of three will be played with the doughty Pythians in that town. Clinton won the first game by the score of 22 to 2, Janesville the second by the score of 8 to 5. The Bow or City team will be stronger than ever before according to Manager Jesse Earle. A. Mitchell of Beloit will be in the box and Cal Broughton behind the batter's plate. Fred Hutchinson is slated to hold down first. W. A. Johnson will be on second. Warren Skelly on third, and Louis Levy at shortstop. Chas. Myrd will be in center-field, and Vah Stevens and George Casey in the right and left gardens. The game will be for 40 and 60 per cent of the gate receipts. The Janesville delegation will leave on the 12:40 train.

TO ALTER COURSE AT SINNISSIPPI LINKS

In Preparation for State Tournament
Next Season—One of Foulis
Brothers Will Direct Work.

Either James or David Foulis, both of whom are professional golfers at the Wheaton links, Chicago, will arrive in Janesville shortly to lay out the course on the Sinissippi links. It has been definitely decided that the Wisconsin state tournament next year is to be held at Janesville and not in Green Lake. On that account it has been deemed advisable to have any needed alterations made this fall in order that the grounds may be in shape next season. The Mr. Foulis who comes will advise the local management as to the location of a number of pot bunkers and other hazards, designed to make the Sinissippi course more difficult. He will remain here several weeks.

WILLIAM RUGER, JR., SELLS INVENTION

Which He Had Perfection During Leisure Moments to the Underwood Typewriter Co.

Rights to a typewriter improvement which William Ruger, Jr., has perfected during some of his odd moments have been purchased by the Underwood Co. Although he did not patent the mechanism the Janesville attorney had it amply protected by legal papers and good offers were received from both the Remington and Underwood people. The latter one was accepted and Mr. Ruger is in receipt of a good sized check for the transference of his invention.

JUDGE CASSODAY GREETED BY FRIENDS

At an Informal Reception Given by Captain Pliny Norcross Last Evening—Formerly Lived Here.

Many friends of Chief Justice Cassoday of the state supreme court attended the pleasant informal reception given in his honor at the home of Capt. Pliny Norcross on Forest Park boulevard last evening. It was not known until late yesterday afternoon that the distinguished jurist was to be in Janesville and arrangements for affording his friends an opportunity to meet him had to be hastily made. Light refreshments were served and a delightful evening was passed by all who participated. Judge Cassoday was at one time associated with the late Judge John R. Bennett in law practice in Janesville.

JAMES WORTHINGTON BURIED ON SUNDAY

Well Known Resident Will Be Laid at Rest Tomorrow Afternoon.

James Worthington, whose death was announced in last evening's issue of the Gazette, will be buried tomorrow afternoon from the residence of C. W. Allen, 126 Chatham street. Owing to the fact the street is torn up by the sewer work the services will be held at the chapel in the cemetery at three o'clock, the funeral party leaving the house at half-past two. Mr. Worthington has long been a resident of the city. In a quiet way he has done much good among the poor of the city and for many years it was his custom to place at the disposal of the late John Hogan a large number of turkeys for distribution at Christmas time. Little is known of his family beyond the fact he came to Janesville from Norwich, Connecticut, where he is thought to have left a sister, a daughter and a wife. He owned the property in which his saloon was located and it is understood this is left by his will to two boys—Bonaparte and Royal Worthington, supposed to be his natural children. These boys and their mother are now living in Beloit, having left Janesville and Mr. Worthington a year ago last Fourth of July. Mr. Worthington had been in bad health for the past nine months and was recently adjudged insane and W. C. Hart appointed his guardian.

PEACE ENVOYS IN DEADLOCK

M. Witte and Baron Komura
Fail to Agree on Four Demands.

ROOSEVELT TRIES FOR PEACE

President Sends Special Messenger to Russian Representative Urging Him to Send Baron Rosen to Oyster Bay for Interview.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 19.—The end is near in the negotiations for peace between Japan and Russia, and that end, unless all signs fail, is to be more war. The plenipotentiaries adjourned Friday hopelessly deadlocked on four of the twelve demands of the Japanese.

They have stood aside to all latent and purposes, and from now on will figure as mere puppets in the vital events that will occur before they convene again next Tuesday.

After Friday's session M. Witte said:

"It is finished. Baron Komura and I are like dogs held in leash. If we are released it will be war. If we are kept in leash it will be peace."

A member of the Japanese suite made this significant statement:

"I cannot say positively, because all things are possible, but I fear that the meeting on Tuesday will be the farwell session of the Washington conference. Japan has done her utmost for peace. Russia now knows Japan's irreducible minimum."

The misad and the czar now have the negotiations in their own imperial hands. The powers of the world are burning up cable wires in an effort to bridge over the impassable chasm that has spread itself between the envoys.

Roosevelt Takes Action.

President Roosevelt has leaped into the center of the arena, and if peace is brought about now it will be resultant solely upon his diplomacy. The emperor of Russia made a masterful move and one that is construed as warlike when he issued his delayed manifesto granting to his subjects rights they had never known before—a voice in the affairs of the government.

This act of the czar, postponed until the final breach between his man Witte and the emissaries of the misad, is universally accepted as the answer of Nicholas to the unacceptable demands of Japan.

It is pointed out that the prospect of a national assembly will solidify the Russian nation, and the appeal of the czar to the patriotism of the people will put them in a frame of mind to rise and fight the foe who is now demanding that Russia humiliate herself before the world.

President Demands Interview.

President Roosevelt does not intend to allow the peace conference to fail if it is in his power to bring the negotiations to a successful end. Friday night he sent a confidential man to Portsmouth with a message to M. Witte.

That messenger will say to M. Witte that it is the president's earnest desire that M. Witte shall send Baron Rosen or somebody in the confidence of M. Witte, and of equal powers, to Oyster Bay at once to see the president.

The president has made his message most urgent. He almost demands that M. Witte shall send a representative to Oyster Bay.

The president is determined that the peace conference shall not end in a break if he can bring about peace, and it is understood here that he has a most pressing communication for M. Witte and the peace conference.

The president has been in constant receipt of reports from the peace conference. He knows that as matters stand, there can be no peace. He will urge on the Russians that they shall ask the czar to recede from the position they have taken on the four points in dispute and thus give the misad a way to make concessions also and end the war.

LABOR LEADERS ACCUSED

Terre Haute Central Body Alleges
Treasurer Makes No Settlement.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 19.—The Terre Haute Central Labor union instructed its delegates to the state federation to file articles of impeachment against James Hogarty, fourth vice president of the federation, on the ground of his refusal to turn over the books and make a settlement as treasurer of the central union for the term expired last February.

Shoots Woman for Deer.

Berlin, Aug. 19.—Baron Speck von Sternberg, a brother of the German ambassador at Washington, shot and killed a woman poacher in mistake for a deer on Count von der Schulenburg's preserves in Neugattersleben.

Hurricane Kills 100 Persons.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 19.—It has been learned that 100 persons were killed by the hurricane and tidal wave on the Marshall Island June 30.

First Mention of Toothpick.

The first known mention of the toothpick was made during the first century of the Christian era—and so far as may now be judged, it very much resembled the little wooden instrument that modern politeness declares never be used in public. There were also dentifrices—an "Arabian produce—brightener of the mouth," for example, which was evidently confined to comparatively few users.

VOICE IN GOVERNMENT FOR PEOPLE OF RUSSIA

Emperor Nicholas Issues Imperial Manifesto Calling Representative
Body to Assemble in January.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—The people of the Russian empire have come into their own—partly. In an imperial manifesto the Emperor Nicholas announces the creation of a national assembly which, though consultative in character, will give the nation's millions a voice in the government under which they exist.

For this new institution, while it places the common people of the empire on a higher plane than they have ever known before in a political sense, does not provide for the making of laws by the representatives of the populace.

But it takes its place among the fundamental organisms of the government with the power to suggest, prepare, and repeal legislation. The manifesto comes as the culmination of decades of stress and striving for reform and is the fruition of the czar's plan outlined by him in a rescript March 3d last.

It fixes the date for the first convocation as mid-January, and in a ukase addressed to the Senate the czar formally orders that body to register as the imperial will a law project, formulating the nature, powers and procedure of the new governmental organization.

The date of the occasion has been happily chosen with due regard to the poetical symbolism so dear to the Russian heart, for on this day is celebrated the great religious feast of the transfiguration of Christ, with the bringing to the church of the first fruits of the new harvest.

The powers of the emperor remain theoretically absolute. As the emperor is the supreme law giver and autocrat, the decisions of the Duma have only a recommendatory and not a binding force, though the rejection of any legislative measure by two-thirds majority of both houses is sufficient to prevent that measure from becoming law.

The representatives of the people will have not only the right to be heard on any legislation proposed by the government, but also can voice their desires on new laws, and will have the right to exert a certain supervision over budgetary expenditures.

The suffrage, though wide, is not universal. It is based on property qualifications, the peasantry having a vote through membership in communal organizations. A considerable portion of the residents of the cities, possessing no lands, together with women, soldiers, civil functionaries, etc., are without suffrage.

GOLD STICKS OUT OF GROUND

Rich Find by Prospectors in Moose Creek District.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 19.—What appears to be a phenomenally rich gold district has been discovered twelve miles northeast of Idaho City on Hay fork of Moose creek. The find was made last fall and the rock was so rich that the prospectors making the find were afraid to let it be known, as they wished to get their claims securely located. Definite news of the find has just been secured. It is said there are three ledges several hundred feet apart, the ore in all running high. C. E. Jones, editor of the Idaho City World, who has been a resident of the section since the great placer days of the basin, states it is undoubtedly the greatest strike ever made in that part of the State. Chunks of ore taken from the ledges are so rich, he says, they would be called nuggets were they found in placer ground. Assays of several thousand dollars to the ton are reported common.

TRACTION ENGINE KILLS A CHILD

Wheel Passes Over Head of Farmer's Five-Year-Old Daughter.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, Aug. 19.—The five-year-old daughter of John Lundgren, living six miles west of Lehigh, was instantly killed under the wheels of a traction engine. The engine was with a thrashing outfit at work on Lundgren's farm. The girl climbed upon the wheels unnoticed by the engineer, who started the machine. The drive wheels passed over her head, crushing it to a pulp.

FASHION NOTES

There is no perceptible falling off in the number of pretty blouses shown in the shops. In fact as far as waists are concerned, fashion's horn of plenty seems to be bottomless.

At one of the smart establishments which makes a specialty of waists, belts and lingerie a pretty design is shown. It is a tucked blouse of shimmering silk, cut down V shape to show a chemise of lace, and has a flat, rounded collar of embroidery edged by a Valenciennes frill. The cuffs of the loose sleeves, which are full almost to the wrist, match the collar. A fresher daintier model for afternoon one would hardly find in a day's journey, yet it can be rightfully classed among the inexpensive modes.

The insides of the majority of smart bodices are substituted with multitudes of silk ruffles which are employed to counteract the droop of the prevailing supple fabrics—that same droop that was so encouraged and fostered a few months ago. Verily does it seem as if Dame Fashion were reverting to the straight front in which the stout sisterhood always finds supreme satisfaction.

It is also to such ruffles that shoulders owe much of their square effect. Sometimes they are made of ruche of expensive quality for very thin bodices, but for less costly blouses plain lawn will answer the purpose just as well, especially if the ruffles are finished with an edging of cheap lace.

The opening of the fashionable bodice of autumn is a matter which is engaging the serious attention of the shirt waist specialists. As a compromise, the waist buttoning at the side is likely to become very much the vogue of the tendency to further decorate the front of smart blouses.

One serious objection to the button-on-the-back waist is that it causes much vexation by coming unfastened at inconvenient times. This is especially annoying in the case of stout women, to whom such an accident is more likely to happen than to her less generously endowed sister.

For separate waists to wear with tailored costumes, for shopping and other common wear, plain silks, some even to show bias lines of plaids, will be in vogue during the coming season. Most of these will be in two tones, one of which will match the hue of the costume.

The woman in black is not an alluring title, but the reality of the title will undoubtedly charm when we behold some of the latest models in black waists and gowns. These are made of silk, lace and embroidery and upon them are expended all the art and elegance of the semi-transparent summer blouse. Indeed it now looks as if black were never so de rigueur as it will be next season.

As long as the blouse holds a place of preeminence in the world of fashion, just so long will marked attention be paid to belts. Some extremely smart designs are shown in the shops. One particularly fetching, has two oblong pear buckles in the same shade as the belt in front, and on a stitched flap in the back is a large round pearl button.

Sombre and shaded effects are all the rage for girdles of ribbon or silk, but they require the utmost care in choosing; not every woman or dressmaker has the eye for color that will enable her to run a scale in one color successfully. One clever little woman who told the secret of her success in this direction said that when she has shaded effects to work out, she always marches straight way to the velvet counter, and there compares the stock goods, which are arranged by experts with samples of all shades of the various colors attached to the outside. "It works like a charm," she said, "and one cannot possibly make a mistake following this rule."

Belts of cut-out suede over silk are beginning to take the place of embroidered effects, and these are sharing favor with designs in embossed leather. A pretty factory is to have the belt match the shoes if no very outer shade is adopted and this idea will be carried out wherever possible in making of handsome afternoon toilettes.

TRADE GROWTH IS CONTINUOUS

Dun's Report.

MERCHANTS SEEK NEW STOCKS

Country Dealers Visit Chicago and Lay in Fresh Supplies in Response to Demands Coming Direct From Consumers—Grain Movement.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—R. C. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of Chicago trade says: "Money is seen to be in increasing request for commercial uses, and the discount rate moved slightly upward. Business conditions reflect steady expansion in new demands and the movement of leading commodities, railroad facilities being tested to the full extent throughout the West."

"The marketing of grain has continued on an enormous scale, the quantity handled here aggregating 12,171,757 bushels against 10,455,573 bushels last week, and 8,783,964 bushels a year ago. Notable gains appear in the receipts of wheat and barley and also in flour. In iron ore and forest products the recent augmentation is maintained, lumber received being 47,908,000 feet, against 42,187,000 feet last week and 34,134,000 feet a year ago. Other receipts of structural material remain heavy. Consumption of building stuff is unprecedentedly rapid and prices have a rising tendency for urgent supplies."

Buyers Flock to Market.

"The Commercial association registration exceeds that of last week, testifying to a continued large influx of visiting buyers. Current transactions in wholesale merchandise are greater than those of the corresponding week last year. Millinery is in much demand and strong buying has been sustained in cotton and woolen goods. Reports from dry goods, clothing, footwear and hardware departments are uniformly excellent. Interior advices remain encouraging, firm confidence being felt in the outlook for a continuance of favorable developments."

Manufactures Are Steady.

"Manufacturing branches exhibit steadiness in both production and forward orders, while price lists have a firm tone. Finished steel continues in good demand, particularly for structural purposes, shipbuilding and factory use. More activity is noted in implements, hardware and machinery. The demand for lumber and mill work is more pressing, owing to the rush of building operations here and at other points."

"Receipts of hides are lower, 2,770,251 pounds, comparing with 2,987,231 pounds last week and 2,986,448 pounds a year ago. Large shipments of leather were made for both local and eastern consumers, and the markets for hides reflects no diminution in either demand or values."

"Failures in the Chicago district number 20, against 33 last week and 23 a year ago."

ELOPEMENT HAS A SAD ENDING

Girl in Trying to Escape Falls From Window, Injuring Spine.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 19.—William Braun, a farm hand employed by Frank P. Seguire of Metuchen, and Louise Gessler, a pretty housemaid in the family of Mrs. William Hahn, planned to elope. In escaping from the house the girl leaped or fell from the second-story window and injured her spine so badly that she may be a cripple for life. A technical charge of assault has been made against Braun and he is in the county jail at New Brunswick, but more serious charges may result. The girl is only 15 years of age, but she looks much older. Braun made her acquaintance while delivering milk and farm products at the Hahn household. She was found on the ground suffering agonies from an injured spine. When Braun was told of the accident he took it as a joke and said some things which led to the making of the complaint.
